

Commissioners: I write to offer comment on the Consumer Banking Association's challenge to the State of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. This challenge, if successful, would subvert the intent of Indiana consumers by imposing the federal "established business relationship" exemption on them. As an Indiana resident, I voted for the tougher privacy standard in Indiana law when I voted for the current Indiana Attorney General, who supported it. I do not wish to be solicited by telephone, whether I have or have had a business relationship with solicitor. Rather than weaken the ground-breaking Indiana law, I support toughening federal communication standards, in order to preserve consumer privacy. Thus, I ask that the FCC deny the Consumer Banking Association's challenge to Indiana Law. Thank you.
